Morning All,

Having a quick scan around the leagues for some recommendations this weekend and a good opportunity presents itself tomorrow evening in Brazil. I know a lot of you will want your full day of betting tomorrow before you even consider games tomorrow evening so guessing not many will have looked this far ahead yet.

I'm here to make money and am not holding out for the "magical" 5 fold winner to come in...I'm here to try and make money so am very selective with my selections and like to have full reasons before I hand my money over to the bookies...

So with that in mind, I'm keen to hear thoughts of others who have similar ideas or have thoughts on this game...As always, full staking plan on site at bettingriver.co.uk

06th October 2012 – Atletico-GO

vs Vasco da Gama (Serie A – Brazil)

Atletico-GO are having a terrible season and find themselves at the foot of the table after 27 games. As you would expect, they have scored the least goals in the league with 27 whilst also having the worst defensive record, conceding 48. That doesn't make for good reason if your a GO supporter.

As you might expect from a team at the bottom of the league, their recent run of form is also the worst in the league. They only managing 1 win and 1 draw in their last 6 games, however, their single win did come away from home against league leaders Fluminense, where they managed to take a 2-0 lead before the break and held on to win the game 2-1. This was indeed a shock result so they are capable of pulling something out of the bag from time to time.

Their home form, like their current form, is also the worst in the league managing to only pick up 3 wins and 3 draws from 13 games. Your home ground is supposed to be a safe fortress where other teams struggle to score but not where GO are concerned. They have conceded a very worrying 23 goals in 13 games at home and have only managed to net themselves on 16 occasions.

Vasco da Gama are at the other end of the table in 4th spot and are 6 points behind 2nd placed Atletico MG. Vasco's games are rarely boring as they have managed to score 35 and concede 27 goals in 27 games, so you can normally expect their to be goals when Vasco take to the pitch (they have only had 3 0-0 results so far this season).

Vasco's current form whilst OK, could be better as they have only picked up 3 wins, 3 draws and 2 losses in their last 8 games. They are unbeaten in their last 4 games but their last loss was a comprehensive one which saw they conceded 4 goals without reply to Bahia.

Away from home they have only lost 3 out of 13 games, which is a big positive for them. However, with only 4 wins and 6 draws, they will need to improve on this if they are to keep pushing the top 3 teams. On their travels they tend to set up very defensively and this is highlighted by their scoring record. They have only managed to net 10 times away from home but, on the flip side, they have the best defence away from home, conceding just the 8 goals.

Only once this season has their been more than 2 goals scored when they play away and that came early in the season when they beat Bahia 2-1.

Review

Atletico are really struggling this season and are leaking goals all over the place. Vasco, on the other hand, are push the top 3 and will be looking to improve on their away record. They do setup defensively when they travel so am expecting a low scoring game but one which Vasco will take 3 points from.
